1 Subcaption Shape Options

There are seven options for setting the subcaption shape or “format”. The default setting is produced by

\captionsetup[subfigure]{ style=default, margin=0pt, parskip=0pt, hangindent=0pt, indentation=0pt, singlelinecheck=true}

which is shown in figure 2. Figure 1 shows the same thing, but without setting the “singlelinecheck” to centering. You can see that the “singlelinecheck” option only affects the short caption.

Any or all of the other shape option may be used at one time, since they define orthogonal aspects of the caption shape. The other options are:

- singlelinecheck, (Boolean) which causes a caption that will fit on one line to be centered below the figure (actually, to use the singlelinecheck format) .
- indentation, (amount) which indents the caption text.
- hangindent, (amount) which indents the caption text, except for the first line of each paragraph.
- parskip, (amount) which adds some extra space between separate paragraphs in a caption.
- format=hang, which causes the label to hang out to the left of the caption text. normal turns it off.
- margin, (amount) which sets extra space to either side of the caption. The option width may also be used. This sets the margins to provide the requested width of the caption.

Figures 1 thru 64 show the different combinations of these formats.

(a) Short caption.	(b) Non fuit causa cur postularet. Qui hoc intellegi potest? Naevio neque ex societatis ratione neque privatim quicquam debuit Quinctius. Quis huic rei testis est? Idem qui acerrimus adversarius; in hanc rem te, te inquam, testem, Naevi, citabo. Annum et eo diutius post mortem C. Quincti fuit in Gallia tecum simul Quinctius.

2 Subcaption Justification Options

There are six options for setting the subcaption format, plus another three if the “ragged2e” package is loaded. The first is `justified` which produces the format shows in figure 65. Only one of these options is allowed. If multiple options appear, then only the last is used. The Figures 66 thru 73 show each of these formats. The shape options selected along with each format option is the default (see Figure 2), this shows the effect of the justification option on a single line caption.

3 Subcaption Font Options

First we show the size options and then various combinations of the other font options. The first subsection, shows the effect of setting the “font” or “size” key; the second subsection shows that of the “labelfont” key and the last subsection that of the “textfont” key.

3.1 “font” or “size” font Options

Figures 74a–74f shows the effect of the “font” size options and the other font options are shown in figures 75a–75x.

3.2 “labelfont” font Options.

Figures 76a–76f shows the effect of the “font” size options and the other font options are shown in figures 77a–77x.

3.3 “textfont” font Options.

Figures 78a–78f shows the effect of the “font” size options and the other font options are shown in figures 79a–79x.
